The Lago Case.

We learn by private letter from Washington that Col. Monroe has secured the services of Hon. Humphrey Marshall, Hon. John J. Crittenden, and Hon. L. W. Powell, as counsel in the Lago case, not less than two of whom will argue it before the Supreme Court. After consultation, it was proposed to enter on Friday (yesterday) a motion for a rule against Gov. Dennison to show cause why a mandamus should not go. This proceeding will bring up all the questions, and if they result in the decision that the Court has no jurisdiction, or that its mandatory process will not reach the Executive of Ohio, or again, that the act of Congress imposing upon the Governor of a State an agency in carrying out an act of Congress is unconstitutional then the necessity of additional legislation to give vitality to the clause of the Constitution in which the case arises will at least be clearly demonstrated. We understand, further, that a bill will be introduced into Congress, as soon as the decision of the Court shall show the necessity of such a measure.

The constitutional question and practical interests involved in the Lago case make it one of great importance to the people of all the slave-holding States. It is not necessary to investigate the merits of this particular case to show that it would be a precedent dangerous to Kentucky to submit to the action of the Governor of Ohio as a final decision. Whether the causes assigned by the Ohio Executive (which are familiar to our readers) for his refusal to issue a warrant for the arrest of the fugitive from justice, in compliance with the demands of Gov. Magoffin, be good or specious, the question remains, is his decision finally obligatory? Is there no mode by which to test the merits of the question raised, and no means whereby his compliance with the Constitution can be enforced? These, we understand, are the questions proposed to be made in the U. S. Supreme Court. These questions gather importance and have their magnitude illustrated in the case now presented. If there be no revision of the action of Gov. Dennison, and, when revised, if there be no means whereby he can be compelled to issue the warrant provided for in the statute, then indeed is the whole slave property of the State at the mercy of the "under-ground railway" agents and negro stealers of the North. The case is thus far one of great practical importance to our people, and it will be of interest to them to know that Gov. Magoffin has taken every necessary step to bring it to a speedy solution, and has intrusted its prosecution in the court to the hands of lawyers and statesmen competent to the discussion of the great questions it presents. Col. Monroe has so far discharged his duties as the agent and attorney of the State with great fidelity and discretion.

Hon. W. S. Featherston, Commissioner from the State of Mississippi to Kentucky left Frankfort yesterday, after having had a full conference with Gov. Magoffin. As some interest may be felt in the object of his mission, we subjoin the resolutions of the Mississippi Legislature under which he acted:

Resolved, by the Legislature of the State of Mississippi, That the Governor be requested to appoint as many Commissioners as in his judgment may be necessary to visit each of the slave-holding States, and designate the State or States to which each Commissioner shall be commissioned—whose duty it shall be to inform them that this Legislature has passed an act calling a Convention of the people of the State, to consider the present threatening relations of the Northern and Southern sections of the Confederacy, aggravated by the recent election of a President upon principles of hostility to the States of the South, and to express the earnest hope of Mississippi that those States will co-operate with her in the adoption of efficient measures for their common defense and safety.

Resolved, That should any Southern State not have convened its Legislature, the Commissioner to such States shall appeal to the Governor thereof to call the Legislature together, in order that its co-operation be immediately secured.

J. A. P. CAMPBELL,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.
JAMES DRANE,
President of the Senate.
Approved, Nov. 30, 1860.

We understand that Gov. Magoffin has not as yet determined to call an extra session of the Legislature, although the drift of events, without a change for the better, may very soon render such action on his part imperative. In other respects his views upon the subjects embraced within the scope of Col. Featherston's mission are already understood as embodied in his late public letters. He stands upon the basis of adjustment contained in his late communication to the Governors of the slave-holding States, which we believe is sustained by the sentiment of nine-tenths of the people of Kentucky.

Col. Featherston is an ardent Southerner, but at the same time a cool, clear-headed man, and one well qualified for the post, the duties of which he has discharged in an agreeable manner. Although our people here will cling to the Union as long as there is hope of preserving our rights and equality and may have more hope of securing these under our present form of government than have his people, yet we can assure him of the full sympathy of Kentucky in all movements properly designed to maintain the honor and the safety of the South. We can assure him further that Kentucky will not hesitate long if the choice is forced upon her of going with the North in the Union or the South out of it. But we desire concert of action and deliberate procedure on the part of all the Southern States not only that there may be strength but justice in our course.

It will be seen by reference to the Prospectus of The New York Ledger, which will be found in another column, that the proprietor of that popular weekly has secured an array of distinguished contributors for his paper for the New Year such as has never been equalled by any publication in the world. The Ledger is always characterized by a high moral tone, and has a circulation larger than that of any other ten literary journals in the country.

Its many friends will be pleased to learn that Robert W. Woolley has returned to his home in this city, after a long absence. He reached this place on Saturday evening last.

Mr. Woolley has, during the past two years, filled the post of Secretary to the American Legation at Madrid, but the greater part of that time, during the absence of the Minister, Hon. Mr. Preston, he acted as Acting Secretary in a position of much responsibility and commendable honor. He returns, with renewed health, to enter with energy upon the prosecution of his profession. His political friends will welcome him once again to the field in which he has hitherto achieved much reputation.—Lex. Statesman.

LEAVENWORTH, Dec. 20.—The Herald contains a letter of Governor Medary to the citizens of Kansas, in which he expresses his resignation.

The Harbor Defenses of Charleston. The Charleston Mercury gives a long account of the defenses of the harbor at that port, from which we copy the following:

PORT MOUTHERIE. This is an inclosed water battery, having a front on the South, or water side, of about 300 feet, and a depth of about 240 feet. It is built with salient and re-entrant angles on all sides, and is admirably adapted for defense, either from the attack of a storming party, or by regular approaches. The outer and inner walls are brick, capped with stone, and filled in with earth, making a solid wall fifteen or sixteen feet in thickness.

According to the Mercury, 170 men are constantly at work in making improvements at this fort; digging it around the entire circumference, and erecting a glacis, closing up the postern gates in the east and the west walls, and instead, cutting railways, which lead into strong out-works on the southeast and southwest angles, in which twelve pounder howitzer guns will be placed, enabling the garrison to sweep the ditch on three sides with grape and canister. The northwest angle of the fort has also been strengthened by a bastion, to sustain the weight of a heavy gun which will command the main street of the Island. The main entrance has also been better secured, and a trap-door two feet square, cut in the door for ingress and egress. At this time, the height of the walls from the bottom of the ditch to the top of the parapet, is twenty feet. The ditch is from twelve to fifteen feet wide at the base, and fifteen feet deep.

The purpose of the glacis, which is an inclined plane, is to expose an attacking party to the fire of the guns, which are so placed as to sweep it from the crest of the counter-scarp to the edge of the beach. On the north side, all the wooden gun-cases have been placed close together on the ramparts, apparently for the purpose of securing it against an escalade, but possibly as a screen for a battery of heavy guns. Field-pieces have been placed in position upon the great wall, which the fort and more of the expedients of military engineering have been neglected to make the position as strong as possible. It is said that the greatest vigilance is observed in every regulation at this time; and that the guns are regularly shotted every night.

Major Robert Anderson, of Kentucky, who is in command of the fort, received his first commission as brevet second lieutenant, 31st artillery, July 1, 1825, was acting inpector general in the Black Hawk war, and received the rank of brevet captain August, 1838, for his successful conduct in the Florida war. On September 8, '47, he was made brevet major for his gallant and meritorious conduct in the battle of Molino del Rey. His force consisted of two companies of artillery. The companies, however, are not full, the two comprising, as we are informed, only about seventy men, including the band.

PORT SUMMIT. This is a work of solid masonry, octagonal in form, pierced on the north, east, and west sides by a double row of port holes for the heaviest guns, and on the south, or land, in addition to openings for guns, loop holes for musketry, stands in the middle of the harbor, on the edge of the ship channel, and is said to be bomb-proof. It is at present without any regular garrison. There is a large force of workmen—some one hundred in all—employed in the construction of a circular battery, which will otherwise put this point in a position of great strength. The armament of Fort Summit consists of one hundred and forty guns, many of them being the formidable ten-inch "Columbiads," which throw either shot or shell, and which have a fearful range. Only a few of these are yet in position, and the work of mounting pieces of this calibre in the casemates is necessarily a slow one. There is also a large quantity of artillery stores, consisting of about 40,000 pounds of powder and a proportionate quantity of shot and shell. The workmen engaged here sleep in the fort every night, owing to the want of any regular communication with the city. The wharf or landing is on the south side, and is, of course, exposed to a cross-fire from all the openings on that side.

CASPER PINCKNEY is located on the southern extremity of a narrow strip of marsh land, which extends in a northerly direction to Hog Island channel. To the harbor side is a low causeway, which is a circular fort. It has never been considered of much consequence as a fortress, although its proximity to the city would give it importance, if properly armed and garrisoned. From a hasty observation we find that there are about fifteen guns mounted on the parapet; the majority of them are eighteen and twenty-four pounders. Some "Columbiads" are, however, within the walls. There are also supplies of powder, shot, and shell. At present, there is no garrison at the post; the only residents are one or two watchmen, who have charge of the harbor light. Some thirty or forty day laborers are employed repairing the casemates and putting the place generally in order.

We clip the following report of Gen. Lane's remarks in the Senate on Thursday, from the telegraphic dispatches:

Mr. Lane said there was one thing the old Democracy would not do. They would not march under the bloody banner of the Senator from Tennessee to trample South Carolina under foot, but they would find their ready to meet him there and repel his bloody band and say they would not subjugate a gallant State struggling for its rights, denied them in the Union. [Applause in the galleries.] Mr. Lincoln was elected simply in consequence of his late to the South. It is surprising that the South should resist. He presented a notice on the North that it could carry a united North, to involve a gallant State fighting for its rights. He knew something of Northern people; knew that they would not march with the Senator in his bloody march. He claimed that Washington was a seceder when he went to Philadelphia and left the Confederacy. He said the whiskey insurgents were not to be compared with the action of a seceding State.

Mr. L. would never draw his sword to coerce States that contemplate action. Read Lincoln's speeches; they show a hatred of slavery and the South. Who is the man hardy enough to undertake to collect revenues of South Carolina when she is out of the Union? Such a man is the worst madman in the world, and would drown the country in blood. He would say to such a coward, "sir, you meet your humble servant and walk over his body." [Applause, and cries of "good!" in the galleries.] He argued that the doctrine of the equality of the States must prevail or dissolution was certain. The party at the North had indicted ruin and distress on the country, and when starving thousands marched the streets of Northern cities they would be responsible. He said the country would lay its hands on him if it would avert the trouble.

The purpose of the glacis, which is an inclined plane, is to expose an attacking party to the fire of the guns, which are so placed as to sweep it from the crest of the counter-scarp to the edge of the beach. On the north side, all the wooden gun-cases have been placed close together on the ramparts, apparently for the purpose of securing it against an escalade, but possibly as a screen for a battery of heavy guns. Field-pieces have been placed in position upon the great wall, which the fort and more of the expedients of military engineering have been neglected to make the position as strong as possible. It is said that the greatest vigilance is observed in every regulation at this time; and that the guns are regularly shotted every night.

On September 8, '47, he was made brevet major for his gallant and meritorious conduct in the battle of Molino del Rey. His force consisted of two companies of artillery. The companies, however, are not full, the two comprising, as we are informed, only about seventy men, including the band.

PORT SUMMIT. This is a work of solid masonry, octagonal in form, pierced on the north, east, and west sides by a double row of port holes for the heaviest guns, and on the south, or land, in addition to openings for guns, loop holes for musketry, stands in the middle of the harbor, on the edge of the ship channel, and is said to be bomb-proof. It is at present without any regular garrison. There is a large force of workmen—some one hundred in all—employed in the construction of a circular battery, which will otherwise put this point in a position of great strength. The armament of Fort Summit consists of one hundred and forty guns, many of them being the formidable ten-inch "Colum

PASTES
For the Speedy and Permanent Cure of Seminal Weakness, Neuronal and Diurnal Emissions, Nervous and General Debility,
Impotence, and all other Diseases
Resulting from Solitary Habits, or Excessive Indulgence.
ELECTRICITY, as a curative agent in the treatment of this mysterious ailment, has long been known to possess rare and wonderful virtues; indeed, so universal has this knowledge become that it would be surprising to find a single physician who did not employ it. The advantage of this mode of treatment is, that it is a simple, and, therefore, a safe and easy labor, but owing to its diffusive and penetrating power of action, it has never before been brought into general use in the treatment of the above diseases.
To Dr. Gates, of Louisville, Ky., is mankind indebted for having first made a practical application of this mysterious agent in the treatment of Seminal Disorders, who, after many years' laborious research and experiment, finally succeeded in modifying and concentrating the electric force, so as to combine it with certain valuable medicinal agents, in the form of Pastes and Pills, in such a manner as to act locally and directly on the parts affected, and in this process of treatment impart health and vigor to the debilitated organs.
These PASTELS will be found sufficient to arrest
Nocturnal and Diurnal Emissions; Price by mail, $1 and three stamps.
The ELECTRO-GENIC PILL should be used in all disorders of the Nervous System; Price by mail, 50 cents and one postage stamp.
THE VIRILE TONIC PILLS are to be used when there is a loss of Vigor and Impotence; Price by mail, $1.50 cents and one stamp. The Pastes should always be used in connection with either of the above Pills.
The advantage of these remedies over all others of similar kind, consist in their power of immediately restoring the system to its normal state, and thereby prevent the injurious consequences of these debilitating drains upon the constitution, at the same time protect the system against their return, and are when used as directed are warranted to give satisfaction, or the money refunded.

CAUTION.—The Pills should not be used during Menstruation, as they will not be the consequence.
H. G. MILLER & Co. are agents for Mr. LIA CHATX's Famous Preventive Pills, by their use those who from any cause wish to limit the number of their offspring, can do so without danger to health or constitution. Price by mail $2 and two stamps.

Gates' Private Treatise on Sexual Diseases. Price ten cents.
